

Chronicling civil-service life for California state workers

April 2, 2009

Board of Equalization HQ: Everyone's back to work

BOE spokeswoman Anita Gore last night sent us this update in the soggy saga of the Board of Equalization HQ in Sacramento:

All 275 employees affected by the closure of the 8th and 9th floors of the 450 N Street Board of Equalization Headquarters Building, who are scheduled to work tomorrow, Thursday, April 2, will be back at work in alternate locations. All but 40 employees had already been called back to work.

The 8th and 9th floors remain closed. Information from the building's owner, Department of General Services, is that these floors should be repaired and ready to reoccupy next week. BOE's consultant hygienist will conduct testing and analyze the test results before employees are returned to their regular work areas.

A water event on March 22 caused flooding that lead to the closure of the 8th and 9th floors and the discovery of mold within the walls in locations on several floors of the building.

IMAGE: BOE headquarters / sacbee.com, 2005